

Micah Kraus

Hazy Street Dream

An image captured on a hot, hazy, deliriously beautiful morning in Cuba. City life was just starting to buzz as people headed to work and school. The vintage lens I used on my Fuji digital camera interpreted the intense morning light as a glowing halo around everything in the foreground. That's how it felt there, fuzzy, intangible and disorienting, like a dream.